THE BIG KNIFE • JAN 23

Charlie Castle has a great life – one of the biggest movie stars on the planet, he's got the world at his fingertips. But Charlie's unfulfilled. He feels empty. There's no more art in his life, just commercial, stale, predictable Hollywood. In this drama, Charlie tries to reconcile the part of him that loves the comfortable life of the movie star with the part of him that worries he's sold his soul.

IT HAPPENED ONE NIGHT • FEB 13

This mother of all romantic screwball comedies sends a runaway heiress and a scheming reporter on the road together as they work their way across the country, hopping trains, buses, and most memorably, hitchhiking.

HIGH STEEL • MAR 26

Hundreds of feet in the air. Was it an accident? Or was it a murder? Inspired by classic film noir, this original Limelight radio show, written by Brian Brems & Ginger Simons, follows a group of steelworkers, high above Manhattan's streets, as they stack the beams for the most recognizable structure on the island – The Empire State Building.

SHADOW OF THE THIN MAN • APR 9

Everyone's favorite sleuthing husband-and-wife team are back in the next installment of the Thin Man series. When Nick and Nora Charles visit a racetrack for a relaxing day, they get mixed up in a murder investigation. Another murder? All right. Who brought the olives?

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

In the fall of 2013, it was discussed to develop an original show for Limelight's radio play season. Along with this idea began the itch to write a spaghetti western story, sparked by the release of Quentin Tarantino's Django Unchained. The world of the spaghetti western genre enabled us to delve into the voices of colorful characters, treacherous landscapes and complicated plot structures; the usual tropes of these films. We are tremendously grateful for the support which the spaghetti western shows have received throughout their creation and performance. We would like to thank the actors for their wonderful job in bringing the characters to life, the SFX crew who illustrate the vibrancy and realism of our world, and the audience who came to join in on the madness. We know it is a cliché to say it feels like yesterday when we writing this trilogy, but it really does. We remember constructing the very first scene which dawned the origin of our hero. As he might say, "Fun ride." And it sure has been.
