DIRECTOR'S NOTES

Rabbit holes, angry queens, cherry tarts, broken rattles, adults behaving more like children than children ever would! On her birthday, Alice finds that she has been thrown into this world of nonsense and must find sense in it. That is the gift of literature, and specifically theatre—it allows us to explore the absurd to find truth. Alice has been given a key, however, as we all have. It is up to each of us to find our door. We hope that, in working through this play, our students may have found a hint to what their door may be. Watch out for rabbit holes!
